

*Memo from the Executive Director
June 2019*

Dear Counselors,

It was a pleasure to connect with so many of you last month via webinar! If you weren't able to attend an event live, we welcome you to review the recording and the slide deck.

Sending SAT scores through MyCoalition

This fall, for the first time ever, students will be able to submit their SAT scores and college applications in the same place: MyCoalition! In partnership with our colleagues at the College Board, we are leveraging technology to reduce complexity in the college application process.

This enhancement will eliminate a step, as students applying to colleges through MyCoalition will no longer have to log in to the College Board website separately to send each college their SAT scores. Plus, if they've been awarded a College Board fee waiver, then they can send their scores to an unlimited number of schools (even schools that aren't members of the Coalition) at no cost.

And the benefits to students are, as one counselor puts it, "Huge! This will open up options for students to share their test scores with schools via MyCoalition that they would not have sent otherwise," says Ann Flynt of Capital High School in Charleston, West Virginia.

Coalition in the News

Sometimes a focus on fit becomes a discussion of place and space that misses the practical considerations of affordability and measures of success. I recently penned an opinion piece for MarketWatch to draw attention to graduation rates and how they can serve as a guidepost in selecting a college.

Thank you for all you've done to support the class of 2019 — and best wishes in your continued efforts to get students one day closer to college.

Most sincerely,

Annie Reznik
Executive Director, Coalition for College
